PARTNERSHIP WITH CHEFS

// Andrea Berton

The participation with the chefs began in the summer of 2012, when Vincenzo first met the Michelin-starred Andrea Berton on a tour of Puglia with his wife.

Whilst staying at Masseria Bagnara Resort & Spa in Marina di Lizzano (TA), he saw some pieces from Del Monaco's ceramic sculpture collection, which prompted him to visit the workshop. Hence the proposal to create a selection of objects for a stimulating and innovative "mise en place", which would also respect in the objects the millimetric style of the Friulian chef's kitchen.

One of the most representative pieces of this association is the Il Lago di Garda tray designed for the Il Sereno resort on the lake of the same name, where Berton was a seasonal consultant.

"Andrea Berton is a true architect of food," explains Del Monaco. "He designs and focuses on every detail, combining the relationship "between form, proportion and media sections, a philosophy he also replicates in his preparations, such as his latest dessert, a sweet egg.

TUAREG
// by Andrea Berton

This particular tureen alludes to sandy, archaic landscapes or coloured, vitrified surfaces. It represents a possible investigation between design scales, environment and design products.

The Tuareg, although designed to be an architecture and landscape rather than a soup tureen, was later a source of inspiration for designing a series of tableware for the Andrea Berton restaurant of the chef of the same name.

// Domingo Schingaro e co

After the first occasion of collaboration with A. Berton, the starting point for other collaborations was Domingo Schingaro, chef at the restaurant I Due Camini di Borgo Egnazia, in Savelletri di Fasano.

For this table, Vincenzo Del Monaco emphasised the themes of Apulia through the irregular textures of tuffaceous stone.

For Schingaro, he created the first service of “stitched” dishes, under the direction of Pino Brescia (Borgo Egnazia Hotel's set designer), which aimed to interpret the values of Apulian poor culture.

This was the beginning of a real collaboration but above all a great understanding with Domingo Schingaro and his entire kitchen brigade including Nicola Iodice (maitre), Angelo Convertini (sous chef) and Tiziano Mita (pastry chef).

An icon of this idyll is the famous Puglia tray, a shaped wooden support that resembles the geographic shape of Puglia and houses 6 containers (one for each province) to which a typical speciality of each geographic area belongs.

 // Angelo SABATELLI
 // Antonio ZACCARDI

The success of the partnership between the chefs and Vincenzo Del Monaco attracted the attention of Andrea Ribaldone of the I due Buoi restaurant in Alessandria.

Over the years, there have been many collaborations with catering professionals, among them the starred Felice Sgarra of Casa Sgarra in Trani (Bt), Angelo Sabatelli of Angelo Sabatelli Ristorante in Putignano (Ba), Antonio Zaccardi of Ristorante Pasha in Conversano (BA).

BROS'
A POP COLLABORATION
Ristorante BROS', Lecce

// Floriano PELLEGRINO and Isabella POTÌ

One pop collaboration is with Floriano Pellegrino and Isabella Potì of Bros' in Lecce.

Somewhere between strong experimentation and provocation, Vincenzo Del Monaco worked on supports for small pastries to desserts, plates for first courses to bowls and single-portion jugs.

A very important project was "Let's Lemon". "There is absolute trust between us," explains the designer, "they adapt to my shapes."

The only condition is "the stranger, the better" in order to match the extreme touched with their gastronomic research, which goes beyond gourmet".

PROJECT
HONG KONG
Ristorante Estro, Hong Kong

// Antimo Maria MERONE

Chef Antimo Maria Merone (1 Michelin star) involved Vincenzo Del Monaco in his new restaurant, Estro, in Hong Kong, which opened on 16 September 2021.

The artist has created a complete set of more than 600 pieces including plates, bowls, oil saucers and caviar container, laying cutlery and serving bowls of different sizes and functions, entirely handmade in fine white porcelain.

But the centrepiece of the collection are the trefoil bowls. Made in two sizes, they bring a very Mediterranean aesthetic concept to the table of the Orient. "Antimo called me because he did not want fine dining dishes, but works by an artist, possibly Italian.

In January 2021, by video call, while he was in Hong Kong and I was in Grottaglie, we worked together on his ideas.

The concepts behind everything were elegance and lightness, which can also be read in his cooking. So it was necessary to have harmonious measurements and proportions between substrate and recipe", explains Vincenzo Del Monaco.

The latest all-Apulian collaboration under the direction of chef Marco Marinelli for the brand new Ognissanti restaurant in Trani (BT).

For this project, in addition to choosing a set consisting of several plates, bowls, hors d'oeuvre plates, cutlery laying and other elements, a different mixture than porcelain, i.e., a semi-refractory with its natural colour and simply treated with a transparent glossy material coating strictly apiombic.

PIZZA HOLDING HAND

// Francesco Calò

From an intense encounter between Vincenzo del Monaco and chef Francesco Calò comes to life an idea of the latter, simple but complex at the same time.

The idea of giving shape to his hand, that hand that has always studied, touched, selected raw materials, that hand that creates, bruises and serves.

In these works, in the representation of his hand, resides his whole vision as a chef.

CRYPTA

This is the dish
“Del Monaco”

A spiritual work in which the shadow awaits the light of taste.

A provocation as well as a challenge for the chefs.

Starting from the established geometry of the ellipsoid, the elements of the project are based on the theme of subtraction.

This work presents itself at the table by removing the food from the diner's view and subtracting a portion of matter from its complete geometry, thus creating a cavity.

Food is therefore not declared on sight immediately but only after the act of "extraction".

This is how "crypta" was born, the work ready to receive the food that cannot be seen but is "subtracted".

It will be crucial to position the "dish" with the cavity never facing the diner but only to the right or left of the diner.

The volume of food envisaged by concept/design is almost as small as a 2.5 -3 cm diameter sphere.
